Stand Ready

A Dublin couple had arranged to go to the Canaries on holiday but, first, the husband had to attend a conference in England. They decided he should fly on from there even though it would mean arriving a day earlier than his wife. When he checked in, he discovered the hotel had computers in every room so he decided to email her. Accidentally he left out one letter in her email address. Meanwhile in Cork a woman who had just returned from her husband's funeral was checking her email for messages of condolence. Her family were shocked to hear a scream followed by the sound of their mother collapsing on the floor. Her daughters rushed to help while her son checked the computer to see what had caused her such alarm. The message read: 'Darling, you'll be surprised to hear from me. They have computers here now and you're allowed to send emails to your loved ones. I've just arrived and have been checked in. Everything is ready for your arrival tomorrow. Hope your journey is as uneventful as mine. Look forward to seeing you. P.S. It sure is hot here!'

The Lord wants us to be ready. He doesn't want us to be shocked.
